ANTHEM

How Blest Is He Who Shuns the Path of Sin

Charles Wood

Choir

How blest is he who shuns the path of sin, who spurns the counsel of unrighteous men and will not stand or sit among the scoffers; their company to him no pleasure offers.
But his delight is in God's holy law; all day and night he ponders it with awe.

Not so the wicked! For like chaff are they—mere chaff that gusts of wind will blow away.
When judgment comes, they'll stand condemned and humbled, cast out from where the righteous are assembled.

The LORD will guard the pathway of the just; the way of sinners leads to death and dust.

Whoever loves God's law with all his heart and will not from the way of truth depart is like a tree which, planted by a river, stays lush and green with leaves that will not wither and which in season yields abundant fruit. So he will thrive, whatever his pursuit.

(Psalm 1, paraphrased by William Helder)
